The mountain gorilla and the honey

Draw a picture for each part of the story.

1

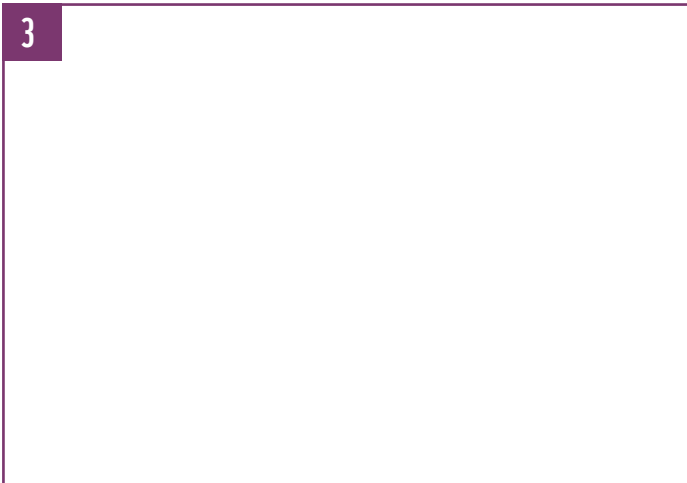

Cesar keeps bees to produce honey. He used to keep his hives in a forest, which was in a national park.

2

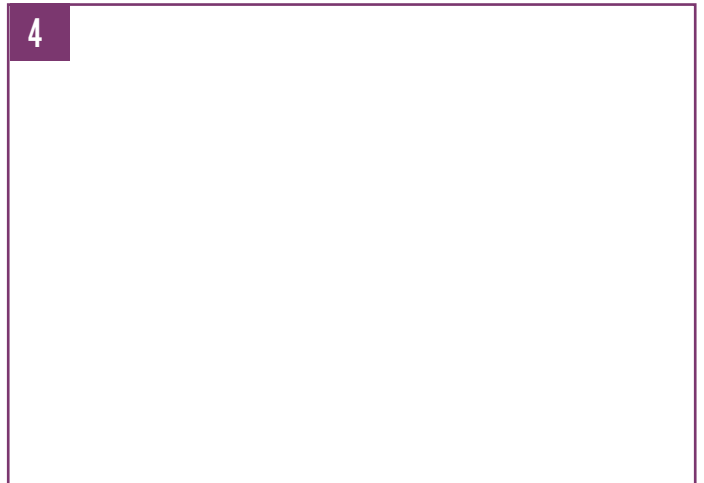

When the time comes to harvest the honey, Cesar uses small fires to smoke the bees out of the hives.

3

When the hives were still in the forest, some people from the International Gorilla Conservation Programme (IGCP) came to talk to him about moving them.

4

They explained that keeping the hives in the national park was dangerous for the gorillas because the fires beekeepers set can spread.

5

Also, human diseases can pass to the gorillas, who have no defences against them.

6

Now Cesar keeps the hives closer to home.
